THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 2 1897.

Six new State Senators will take their seats when the Legislature convenes next January. They will represent Bamberg, Dorchester, Greenwood, Barnwell, Clarendon and Cherokee.

After a man has married and settled down he thinks it folly for young people to go to dances, but this does not prevent him from spending half a day lugging his gun round a cornfield to get a shot at some poor innocent birds.

The news papers are all talking about the condition of Secretary Sherman. They say he is fast losing his mind. He remembers and talks intelligently of what happened years ago, but of his appointments and the present day he remembers nothing. He is 74 years old and these things come to the aged.

Tribute to a Deceased Veteran.

When an honest man dies it is obligatory on someone to write an epitome on his life and character, whether he was a statesman or a private citizen who followed the even tenor of his way.

Mr. Alex McClary was born in this county about 70 years ago, not far from Kingstree, and died here Aug. 31, 1897. He descended from Irish ancestors who settled in this country before the war of 1776, and aided the colonists in getting as the boon of liberty which we now enjoy.

From early boyhood he was engaged in the pursuits of farming and stock-raising. No man ever worked with greater tenacity of purpose than he. No one observed more closely the cereals and fruits, and he could tell you their exact time of ripening and how to preserve them. He was also a great hunter: often with gun in hand he would go far into the dense forest in search of the agile deer, and woe be to the stag that tossed his antlers in the air, for quick as thought "the dead shot" would bring him down. Often, when he was a young man, he was seen at the early dawn in his light canoe scudding the placid waters of his native river, angling, taking in the bright scaly tribe to his heart's content.

There are disappointments in all men's lives. Suddenly the scene in this man's life changes. At the sound of the war drum he buckled on his armor and went fourth to battle. He was a brave soldier—an army of such men as he would have been invincible. His hospitality was unlimited. The house was always open to the stranger as well as neighbor, for his motto was, "Turn not the stranger from thy door." He endeavored to make all welcome and happy. No task was too arduous for him when waiting upon his guests.

His character was without fault. All those who knew him should hold up their hands and say he was a man—without dissimulation, without prejudice, without stinginess, without censure. In fact, he was endowed with all of those qualities which makes nature's noblest men. The world grows better and thinks better of mankind when it meets with one of those phenomenal men whose pure life impress upon their race a moral brightness which cannot be eradicated. Their good deeds are not interred with their bones, but live after them, and are as indestructible as the reign of truth. It is true that our old friend is gone forever but he still lives in our memories; who can forget the brave and the noble, the virtuous and the humane. None. Not one.

From his well-spent life we can draw a moral: in emulating his noble example by casting aside the evil emotions and following the paths of rectitude. C. L.

Owing to over-crowding and bad ventilation the air of the school-room is often close and impure, and teachers and pupils frequently suffer from lung throat troubles. To all such we would say, try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. For coughs, colds, weak lungs and bronchial troubles no other remedy can compare with it. Says A C Freed, superintendent of schools, Prairie Depot Ohio: "Having some knowledge of the efficacy of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, I have no hesitancy in recommending it to all who suffer from cough, lung troubles, &c." For sale by Dr. W. L. Wallace.

Why take Johnson's Chill & Fever Tonic? Because it cures the most stubborn case of Fever in ONE DAY.

Mr. E. J. Pendergrass has gone to Kingstree to visit his mother who is quite ill.—Florence Times.

"My boy came home home from school one day with his hand badly lacerated and bleeding, and suffering great pain," says Mr. E. J. Schall with Meyers Bros' Drug Co., St. Louis, Mo. "I dressed the wound and applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely. All pain ceased, and in a remarkably short time the wound healed without leaving a scar. For wounds, sprains, swellings and rheumatism I know of no medicine or prescription equal to it. I consider it a household necessity." The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by Dr. Wallace.

Beautiful eyes grow dull and dim As the swift years steal away. Beautiful, willowy forms so slim Lose fairness with every day. But she still is queen and hath charms to spare Who wears youth's coronal—beautiful hair.

Preserve Your Hair

and you preserve your youth. "A woman is as old as she looks," says the world. No woman looks as old as she is if her hair has preserved its normal beauty. You can keep hair from falling out, restoring its normal color, or restore the normal color to gray or faded hair, by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor.

Among the qualities most to be desired in a young girl's character is a high sense of honor. I wish I could impress upon every reader the need of being always above everything petty or small, so that one would not for a single moment ever be tempted to do a mean or underhand thing, to speak unkindly of a friend, or to repeat a conversation which was confidential.

It may happen to you, for instance, to be visiting in the home of a relative or friend, where there may be a little friction at the table or where some anxiety arises about the course of a member of the family. No matter what you see or hear, in such circumstances you are bound, if you are an honorable person, to be silent about it, neither making comments or looking as if you could tell something if you choose, nor in any way alluding to what is unpleasant at any future time. A guest in a home cannot be too careful to guard the good name of those under its roof, for it is an honor to be a guest, in the first place, and honor is demanded in return.

Again, a nice sense of honor in matters connected with money is very important. Polly is treasurer of a society and has the care of the funds. She must never for an instant, or in an emergency, lend these funds to other people or borrow them for her own use. I knew a girl—Polly was her name, by the way—who was induced, being treasurer of a certain guild, to lend her brother, for one day, the money she had in her case. The brother was older than Polly, and a very persuasive person. He said: "Why should you hesitate? I'll bring it back to you to-night and it will oblige me very much if I could take that fifty dollars and pay a bill I owe before noon to-day." Foolish Polly permitted her scruples to be overruled. The money was not brought back and but for her father's kindness in making it good she would have been disgraced as a dishonest-treasurer. She told me long afterwards that the lesson had been burned in on her mind: never to take liberties with money which she held in trust.—Harper's Round Table.

A Western paper gives the following receipt for killing your home paper, your business and your town along with it:

"Just let the subscription go. It's only a dollar or two—the publisher don't need it.

"If he ask for it get as mad as you can and stop the paper—you never need it anyhow. Then go and borrow your neighbors."

"When a reporter comes always be busy. Make him feel as if he was intruding. When the advertising and job man comes, tell him that it doesn't pay you to advertise, everybody knows you and that you will try to get along without any printed stationery, it is too expensive, and you must economize.

"Never drop in to see the editor unless you want a free complimentary notice or a lengthy obituary for a beloved relative."

"Never recommend the paper to anybody. When you speak of it, say, 'Yes, we have a little sheet, but it doesn't amount to much.'

"Keep this up for a year or two and you will have a dead newspaper and a dead set of merchants and a dead town.—Ex.

A bright boy compares the verb "to snore" thusly; "positive snore; comparative, snort superlative,—er—both."

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passager. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggist, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention The County Record and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.
